Democrat Wins Election 'Comfortably' in Big Donald Trump District

Democrat Chastity Verret Martinez has won the special election for Louisiana House District 60, defeating Republican challenger Brad Daigle by a wide margin in a district that supported President Donald Trump in 2024.

Imagine a world where the people of my family were able to hear my voice more often and more clearly than the voice of a failed and felonious loser like Ronald 'the John' Mac Donald Chump.

Imagine a world where I could read the news at 4:45 a.m. without listening to a 'Chump Train' toot its own horn as a disturbance to my life, thoughts, and general well-being.

In what world would that ever occur?

By the way, these are my people, from the ancestry of both mine and my wife.

While Chump and Epstein and his circle of friends chase Russian women around their islands, we marry and love women such as this.

Let it be known that the values we seek to grow in our homes are far better and more appealing than the 'inclinations' and 'tendencies' they seek to grow in theirs.

May the people of the world hear my voice today, and the voices of other people like Chastity Verret Martinez, instead of the continuously divisive and childish voice of . . . that other guy.

What To Know

Martinez campaigned on a platform focused on affordable insurance, stronger local infrastructure, and expanded access to health care, including mental health and substance-abuse services. She also focused on government transparency, support for public education, and advocacy for working families. A longtime community advocate, Martinez pointed to her record of grassroots engagement, including volunteering with local food pantries and assisting families in need, as central to her approach in representing District 60.
